THE BELL HAS RUNG

The bell has rung, the straw hat is called in,
Give it a rest, 'tis weary and forlorn,
Its life ebb'd away in the early morn
On the day when the peace treaty was born.

Young and older men won't know where they're at
Without a new soft or derby hat,
The window display that beats all others
Is seen at the store of Bicknell Bros.

Why dost thou cling to that ancient hat,
Keep up with the times, laugh and grow fat,
Sleep like a log, eat a full ration,
Shake that straw hat, or loose your station,
You can do a deal worse and you can't do better than buy your fall hat at

BICKNELL BROS.'

BOSTON'S NEW STORE

EVERY READER OF THIS PAPER IS CORDIALLY INVITED TO BE PRESENT ON THE OPENING DAYS, SEPT. 11th to 16th.

On September 11th, the Henry Siegel Company will throw open to the public its superb new department store, the largest, most convenient and most fully equipped shopping place in New England. This mammoth establishment is operated in connection with the three other immense stores, all under the same management—the Simpson Crawford Co. and the "14th Street Store" in New York, and the Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s store in Chicago. The combined purchases of these four stores are over fifty million dollars worth of goods annually and with this tremendous outlet these stores can control the markets of the word and sell merchandise on a small profit basis, for less than other stores have to pay for it wholesale.

The building is located in the heart of the retail district and occupies, with the exception of a small corner, the entire block bounded by Washington street, Essex street, Harrison avenue and Hayward place. The frontage is 240, 150 and 230 feet on these thoroughfares in the order named; the massive building is seven stories high and has two basements, so that since each floor has an area of 50,000 square feet, the total floor space, including the main floor, is about half a million square feet, or over eleven acres.

On Washington street are two spacious entrances, with wide rubber-tiled vestibules; a similar entrance may be found on Essex street and one on Hayward place, while a smaller door on Essex street near Harrison avenue and two emergency doors on Harrison avenue provide ample accommodation for entrance and exit. The main door on Essex street is protected by a wide marble and iron, supported by heavy chains, thus especially suiting it for a carriage entrance.

A ventilating plant of the latest design assures pure air in every part of the building, and, since it is connected with the refrigerating system, it is easy to maintain through the store a temperature several degrees below that outside, should hot weather prove oppressive. This refrigerating plant is exceptionally complete; it sends a current of brine cooled below the freezing point through the refrigerators used in the kitchen, lunch room, provision departments and soda fountain, and in addition operates two thirty-ton ice machines and keeps the temperature in the storerooms well below the point of incubation.

Three distinct methods of communication between the floors are provided. Four wide stairways extend from top to bottom, eight hydraulic plunger elevators run from the basement to the seventh floor, and two of the newest pattern escalators, or moving stairways, connect all floors from the basement to the fifth. One of these runs up and the other down, but, in case of need, the latter may be reversed.

The building is the only absolutely fire-proof department store in New England. A thick wall provided with fireproof doors divides it through the center, the stairways are guarded by iron doors and the elevator shafts are of tiled, fire-proof construction. The building is lighted throughout by electricity, the danger of fire is reduced to a minimum at every point.

The Hoosac Mountains and the Deerfield Valley form a combination of mountain grandeur and pastoral beauty of rural landscape seldom seen.

It was Hawthorne who in a ride through this region perceived the variations of nature in her bestowal of beauty upon this favored land, and he expressed it forcibly when he observed that the peaceful scenery of the valley was diversified by the mountains in their offerings of sunshine and shadow, glory and gloom.

It is the Pittsburgh Division of the Boston and Maine R. R. which has the honor of serving this scenic section; and it is safe saying that no railroad in the United States has such a magnificent border of landscape beauty as the railroad from the "Charles to the Hudson."

This is the route of the $5.00 excursion from Boston on October 5th, and from other stations on October 4th, and one has but to receive an inkling of what wonders are in store, and a "sure venture" that he will see for himself. After departure from the North Station, is but a few minutes ere we are in the city of the city of watches, and watch out for you are on the banks of the Charles and about to commence a railroad journey through New England's "Garden of Eden."

Kustling cities dropped midst the green hills of central Massachusetts; shimmering lakes whose shores are sheltered with large shade trees, silvery streams whose green banks and verdant border lands invitingly welcome us to tarry awhile and rest; roaring water falls, snowy cascades, sportive brooks, and huge hills and mountain peaks all pass by the Boston and Maine biograph. At Troy, N. Y., we bid good-bye to the delightful scenery as viewed from a car window. We cross the Hudson and alight from the train at Albany, N. Y. You may enjoy the moonlight view of the Hudson River on the night steamers or remain in Albany over night and take

In the sub-basement are the engine room, delivery department, reserve stock, refrigerating plant and men's cloak room. The china, glassware, crockery, house furnishings, trunks and bags, together with the cash-tube room and the women's cloak room occupy the basement.

The Essex street side of the main floor is devoted to leather goods, lace, veils, handkerchiefs, gloves, women's shoes, silks, jewelry, toilet articles, umbrellas, knitted underwear, hosiery, men's furnishings, a cigar stand, candy counter and the magnificent opus alexa fountain, one of the largest ever built.

On the Hayward place side of the street floor are the silks, velvets, dress goods, linens, white goods, flannels, ribbons, wash goods, buttons, trimmings, small wares and paper patterns. In the balcony around a part of this floor are the banking offices for the use of our customers, telephone booths, millinery work rooms and the superintendent's office.

Women's and misses' suits and waists, furs, millinery and supplies, muslin underwear, corsets and infants wear share the second floor with an elaborate retiring room, a toilet room, manicure and hairdressing parlors, a doctor's office and a nurse's room. These apartments are light and airy and are supplied with every convenience our patron can wish for.

The third floor is used for carpets, rugs, matting, upholsteries, books, toys, games, stationery, musical instruments, sporting goods, art goods, blankets and comforts, and men's and boys' clothing, hats, caps and shoes.

The departments on the fourth floor comprise the furniture, sewing machines and pictures, although a large part is taken up by the general and private offices, and the men's order department.

The restaurant on the fifth floor, seating a thousand, is the finest restaurant in Boston. The floor is marble and the beautifully decorated walls, oyster columns, graceful fountain surrounded by ferns and potted plants, all rising from among the snowy linen and brilliant silver and glass make a picture which proves hard to forget. An orchestra plays the best pieces, and the whole is under the care of one of the most experienced restaurateurs in this part of the country.

Another section of this floor is used by the dairy and grocery and provision departments. Here all the fancy and staple eatables are carried in the complete detail and at the low prices which prevail throughout the store.

On the sixth floor are work rooms and stock rooms and the employees' lunch and recreation rooms. This last is a most attractive and homelike spot, books, easy chairs and a piano lending delightfully to various offices and stock rooms.

The seventh floor gives ample room for the photographic gallery in charge of trained artists, the cold storage room for furs, for various offices and stock rooms.

Hereafter a trip to Boston will be absolutely incomplete without a visit to the Henry Siegel Company's store. Through the mail order department, which is fully equipped to take care of all wants from the largest to the smallest, out-of-town people can shop from their own homes with satisfaction.

In the slights of the capital city. The day line trip down the Hudson on the palatial steamers is undoubtedly the grandest sail in the country. We pass in plain view of the gorgeous Catskill Mountains, under the famous Poughkeepsie Bridge, past West Point, Newburg and the historical shrines of the Revolution, the palisades and all the scenic wonders of a wonderful region; through the maze of flying craft in New York harbor, and dock at the metropolis.

Two days in New York—you can do it, you please. Returning, we survey via the Fall River Line steamers to Boston and other stations, and via the Providence Line to Providence and Worcester. $5.00 is the round trip rate. Send to the General Passenger Department, Boston and Maine R. R., Boston, for the beautiful illustrated booklet and souvenir of the trip. It describes the journey in detail, and is so beautifully illustrated. It will be sent free to any one upon receipt of address.

ESSEX COUNTY AND HER REPRESENTATION.

Despite the 15 per cent gain in population made in Essex county in the past ten years the figures so far given out by Chief Charles F. Pidgeon of the state census bureau indicate that the county will lose some of delegation in both branches of the state legislature. These figures given out by Chief Pidgeon are of the total population and those of legal voters on which the districts are really made up will not be ready until about the first of December.

As the proportion between the number of legal voters and the total population is relatively the same throughout the state one can get a clear idea of how the apportionment can be made by the next legislature which is really to do the work.

The total population of the state as ascertained by Chief Pidgeon is 2,998,958 and there are to be 40 legislative districts. It follows that on the basis of averages a district should be made up of as near as possible with dividing town and ward lines of 74,974 people.

Essex county has been found to have a total population of 289,915. This would allow her five districts and a "remainder" of 6,946. There are now five districts in the county but there is also an Essex-Middlesex district made up of one of the wards of Lynn and adjoining towns on the west and several towns in Middlesex county.

About half the time the district is represented by an Essex county man and then the county delegation numbers six. Reducing this proposition to figures it means that Essex has five and a half districts now.

While the "remaining" figures of 6,946 will not leave much of a basis for a claim of retaining the present Essex-Middlesex district it is doubtful if the Middlesex members would agree to such a matter. That county has gained in population proportionately faster than Essex. It now totals up to 607,938 and would give it eight senatorial districts where it now has seven and a half. Even then it has population "remaining" numbering 8,146 so that it is not likely to give much heed to the request of Essex state makers.

How these five districts are to be made up in Essex county is a matter all in the air. The law provides that it shall be done as equally as possible without dividing towns or wards of cities. Lynn with 77,025 has a little more than population enough to make a district by itself, while Lawrence with 59,939 can almost do it. The chances are however that some such system as now of putting Newburyport and Gloucester in one district and having the others centre around the other cities will be continued. This is a matter that the legislature in its wisdom must decide.

In the house of representatives it would appear that Essex is to lose two if not three of her delegation of 33. On the basis of averages a representative district should have 12,496 population. With the county population of 289,915 this would allow for 23 districts with 6,036 remaining with which to ask for a 31st district. Apparently there will be five districts remaining after the figures are strictly followed to be allowed on this matter of "remainders."

Hampshire has 12,221 with which to argue for another district; Worcester, 11,956; Berkshire, 10,820; Middlesex, 8,130; Hampden, 7,700; and Bristol 6,589 before Essex's claim is reached, so

There are now five districts in the county but there is also an Essex-Middlesex district made up of one of the wards of Lynn and adjoining towns on the west and several towns in Middlesex county.

While the "remaining" figures of 6,946 will not leave much of a basis for a claim of retaining the present Essex-Middlesex district it is doubtful if the Middlesex members would agree to such a matter. That county has gained in population proportionately faster than Essex. It now totals up to 607,938 and would give it eight senatorial districts where it now has seven and a half. Even then it has population "remaining" numbering 8,146 so that it is not likely to give much heed to the request of Essex state makers.

How these five districts are to be made up in Essex county is a matter all in the air. The law provides that it shall be done as equally as possible without dividing towns or wards of cities. Lynn with 77,025 has a little more than population enough to make a district by itself, while Lawrence with 59,939 can almost do it. The chances are however that some such system as now of putting Newburyport and Gloucester in one district and having the others centre around the other cities will be continued. it would seem that her chances of obtaining a 31st man were somewhat remote.

On top of all this comes the pathetic case of Barnstable county which has lost a man with every redistricting since the civil war. Her delegation has been cut down from seven to three and now it appears that she must be satisfied with two unless her case excites sympathy enough to give her a third man on a "remainder" of only 1,839.

Middlesex on the other hand is to gain one representative on the figures increasing her delegation from 47 to 48. Even then she has "remaining" 8,139 population with which to contend for another district if she cares to.

How these districts are to be made up after their number is fixed is a matter that one cannot tell. This duty the legislature turns over to the county commissioners who will give hearings next summer and decide in time for the fall elections.

As a whole the voters all through the county would do well to re-elect men who have served before in the legislature. They are acquainted with other members. They stand a better chance of getting appointed on the redistricting committee and whether or not they can do better work for the county than men who will have to start in and learn the ropes and who will be taken advantage of by men from other parts of the state who are better posted.

LONDON VEHICLES.
From the London Chronicle.
A visitor to London complains to us about the absence of open 4-wheel cabs from the streets of London, and says that if they were introduced they would be sure to do big business. Other cities have them, and they are much patronized by tourists and other sightseers.

Our correspondent found the open 4-wheelers plentiful at Hampton and other up-river resorts, and also at the various English watering places which he visited, but in a long search in the neighborhood of Northumberland Ave. he could not discover one.

A Trafalgar sq. policeman told him he did not think there were any which we believe to be correct. Sightseeing cannot satisfactorily be done from a hansom, and "growlers" are of course impossible. The point is one that may interest enterprising job-makers. In Paris all visitors are patrons of the open cab.

IOWA'S AUTO LAW.
From the time that the car crossed the Iowa line the tourists were made acquainted with the latest of the Iowa laws.

Every farmer they met driving in the country merely raised his hand, and that was the cue to slow up and stop. Sometimes a warning hand could be seen hundreds of yards in front, and they were compelled to stop and wait until the horse passed.

This is the Iowa law, and every tourist in passing through the state soon learns that it must be obeyed.—Minneapolis Tribune.

MAN HUNTING WITH A CAMERA.

(Newport Letter in New York Sun.) Photographers are no longer permitted to stand in front of the casino on Bellevue avenue, and snapshot social lions as they emerge from their favorite lair. This rule was put in force by the people as a result of an incident in which Harry Hehr figured recently. He was coming out of the casino with a party of young women. A photographer stepped in front of the party, the mechanism within the black box clicked, and Mr. Hehr grew indignant.

"Really, now," he said, stepping up to the man who seemed in charge of this predatory expedition. "I think I shall have to break that camera."

"Really, you mustn't," replied the photographer. "Besides," as a brilliant idea seized him, "we have a right to photograph you. You are a public personage, you know."

"Oh, but indeed, I'm not," asserted Mr. Hehr.

The young ladies of the party had approached to listen to the dispute. They were clearly in sympathy with Mr. Hehr in the matter. "I think it is an outrage," said one of them, Miss Sadie Jones, who had had a coming out party just before the incident occurred. "If they allow this at Newport I shall not stay here this summer."

The upshot of the conversation was that a policeman asked the photographer to occupy a less prominent position for a few days, until the temperature dropped. This he willingly did, for he and the policeman were on amicable terms.

The Peace of Portsmouth.

A complete accord on all the questions at issue between the peace envoys of Russia and Japan was announced at the Portsmouth (N. H.) conference Aug. 29, Japan having finally waived the claim for $300,000,000 indemnity and offered to let Russia have the northern half of the island of Sakhalin, now held by the Japanese forces. Japan had previously yielded her demands for the interned Russian ships and the limitation of Russia's naval power in the east. On the other eight demands agreement had been previously recorded—namely, Japanese preponderance in Korea, Russian and Japanese military evacuation of Manchuria, transfer to Japan of Russian leasehold in Liautong peninsula, Port Arthur and Dalgay; integrity of China recognized by both powers, transfer of all public and military stores and property in Port Arthur and Dalgay, to confirm Japan's military foothold, transfer to Japan of the railroad between Port Arthur and Harbin, Russia's retention of the main Manchurian line, and Japan to have fishing rights on the Siberian coast. The cost of caring for prisoners will be paid by each side proportionately.

All the church and fire bells of Portsmouth were rung and the steam whistles were tooted when the first official word of the peace agreement was received. Russia's envoys and their sympathizers were jubilant over what they regarded as Japan's backdown. M. Witte and his colleague, Baron Rosen, felt that they had won a diplomatic triumph by obtaining peace without one cent of tribute—"pas un sou," as the big Russian envoy put it in expressive French to the newspaper correspondents when he returned to the hotel. Japan's envoys, Komura and Takahira, were correspondingly depressed, refusing absolutely to be interviewed, the only official statement made orally for Japan coming from Mr. Sato.

Throughout the world the main credit for the successful outcome of the Portsmouth conference is given to President Roosevelt, who, by virtue of his official station and personal force of character, held the envoys together pending appeals made direct to their respective rulers. It is well known that neither Baron Komura nor Mr. Takahira were willing to yield the demand for indemnity, but another Japanese representative, Baron Kaneko, the confidential agent of the mikado, was in constant touch with the president, and through Kaneko and the elder statesmen at Tokyo the emperor of Japan was brought to see the wisdom of placing honor and humanity above a mere question of money. After all, Japan has got what she went to war for—namely, the foothold in Asia which assures her national existence, while her position among the family of nations is secure.

Steps were taken at once for the cessation of hostilities and the drawing up of a formal treaty, which, it was expected, would be signed at Washington. The peace terms are extremely unpopular in Japan.

The war thus brought to a close began Feb. 4, 1904, with Japan's naval attack on the Russian fleet at Port Arthur. It has therefore lasted 527 days, at an estimated cost of nearly $2,000,000,000 to Russia and $1,500,000,000 to Japan. There were 420,000 Russian casualties in battle and 170, 000 Japanese casualties, while seventy-three warships were lost by Russia and twelve by Japan.

The question was referred to a committee of specialists from the parliaments of various nations.

Boycott Suppression Insincere.

That the orders from Peking instructing provincial officers to repress the boycott against American goods are not taken seriously was indicated at Shanghai when Chang Chien fired certain dealers for alleged breaches of the boycott. He arranged, however, to allow the sale of goods contracted for before the boycott.

Men For Woman Suffrage.

In the new plan of work adopted by the Woman Suffrage association of Portland, Ore., every branch is centering its energies on the enlistment of men as active members. Hopeful About Panama Canal.

Chairman Shonts of the Panama canal commission, after his recent conference with the president, announced that there would be no trouble about securing all the labor wanted, as 100,000 Jamaican blacks could be had whenever desired. He said he had laid off the steam shovels, the tracks not having been ballasted for them. W. G. Baird, assistant general manager of the Rock Island railroad, has been appointed general superintendent of the Panama railway, to succeed Mr. Prescott, who resigned because of the criticism of Chairman Shonts. About the middle of September Mr. Shonts expects to return to the isthmus, but he has no idea of resuming the actual work of canal digging until proper conditions for housing and feeding the laborers and operating the machinery have been arranged.

Land Inspector Impached.

The interior department has dismissed Special Inspector George F. Wilson on account of the disclosure made during the investigation of charges against Senator Mitchell of Oregon. Wilson admitted that he had received the alleged bribes for favorable recommendations in some cases, but claimed that he had taken the money to entrap the bribers. This explanation was not satisfactory.

SCIENTIFIC

Scientists Witness Eclipse.

The elaborate preparation made by scientists of many nations to observe the total eclipse of the sun Aug. 30 was rewarded with clear weather in northern Africa and Spain, where the various expeditions had been stationed in the path of the moon's shadow. This path was about 120 geographical miles wide and extended from Manitoba, Canada, half around the world to Arabia. Many valuable pictures were obtained of the brilliant corona, showing the brilliant gas flames which extended 50,000 kilometers high. As totality approached, the shadow of night swept over the land, causing cocks to crow and children to cry with terror. The temperature fell five degrees during obscuration. At the beginning a wind rose, and on the ground was seen the moving shadow in stripes, a phenomenon which has not yet been explained.

A Cure For Old Age.

Professor Eli Metchnikoff, a distinguished Russian scientist, writes in McClure's that he has discovered a method for lengthening the period of human life so that a man eighty years old will be only at middle age. His theory is that the physical evidence of age is a disease resulting from the ravages of certain forms of bacteria. He has discovered that the white corpuscles of the blood constitute "the army of defense of the body politic." These tiny cells rush to any wounded part of the body to absorb the foreign matter and to carry on the healing process. The article sets forth that the microbe which causes milk to turn sour is the most efficient enemy of bodily decline. He notes that the Bulgarian mountaineers, who are famous for their longevity, consume great quantities of sour milk. Therefore he suggests the eating of milk curds as a means of lengthening life.

Vegetables Cure Consumptives.

Dr. John F. Russell, who for seven years has been carrying on experiments for the cure of consumption at the New York Post Graduate hospital, announces the positive conclusion that the juice of raw vegetables added to his other treatment has increased the chance of cure nearly 100 per cent. Dr. Russell's treatment is based on the theory that the disease is largely due to malnutrition; hence he has devised a diet which enables the patient to absorb more fat than is needed for heat and more protein than is needed for the repair of waste. In five months of treatment with the vegetable juice eleven patients were discharged as apparently cured. This juice is obtained by grinding together the ordinary vegetables found in the market and which can be prepared by the patient at home if necessary. The dose is two ounces twice a day after meals. The entire treatment costs $6 a week. Fifty patients are now under treatment at the hospital.

LEGAL-CRIMINAL

Equitable Graft Admitted.

The answers of the forty-nine directors of the Equitable Assurance society of New York to the charges of graft made in connection with a suit brought by the attorney general of the state was the decision to join with the state in asking for a full investigation in court. The admission is made that some of the officers had been guilty of improper and illegal acts. They admit the $250,000 loan to the Depew Improvement company and the $885,000 loan to the Mercantile Trust company. They also say that under the guise of salaries excessive fees were given to certain officials, but that this was unknown to the board of directors.

"Jim Crow" Car Damage Case.

W. H. Hart, professor of law in Howard university, Washington, has brought suit against the Pennsylvania railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio for $30,000 damages for having been compelled to ride in a "Jim Crow" negro car, Aug. 31, 1904, while on a train from Jersey City to Washington. Professor Hart declares that he is an Indian and not a negro.

Organized Band of Bigamists.

Information given to the New York police in connection with the numerous marriages of Dr. George A. Witzhoff, a dentist who is said to have won the confidence of fifty women, all of whom he had robbed and deserted, led to the presumption that Witzhoff is only one of an organized gang of bigamist robbers who have been operating for several years from resorts on the New York east side, with the result that more than 500 girls have been duped.

Statistician Holmes Surrenders.

Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., formerly assistant statistician of the department of agriculture, has given himself up to the marshal at Washington and has been arrested on a warrant issued by the District supreme court. District Attorney Beach wished the bail placed at $20,000 because Holmes had not shown up as soon as promised. The bail was fixed at $10,000. For several weeks Mr. Holmes had kept himself out of sight, and the authorities feared that he had fled the country. His attorney protests, however, that he is innocent of the charges against him and insists that it was a physical impossibility for him to have furnished the crop information in advance of its official promulgation.

Debs Strike Riot Bill.

The jury at Wheaton, Ill., has brought in a verdict of $100,000 damages against the city of Chicago in favor of the Panhandle railroad for the burning of its freight cars during the Debs strike of 1894. It was argued that the city was responsible for the loss because of its failure to give adequate protection.

Burton In Graft Scandal.

The friends of Senator Burton of Kansas are trying to belittle the new story of alleged graft in connection with the Chickasaw Indian school fund. CRICKET LEAGUE SEASON IS ABOUT TO CLOSE.

The cricket season is fast coming to a close, many clubs only having one or two games to play. The pennant seems to be destined to fly over Lynn, unless the West India C. C. should upset all calculations by defeating the Lynn Wanderers in their last game next Saturday, and many more unlikely things have happened. Then, if Lawrence should defeat East Boston, Lawrence and Lynn would be tied for first place; but it must not be overlooked that Everett, with two games to play, by winning both would also be tied with Lynn and Lawrence.

Bunting C. C. by defeating West India, has made its position strong for fourth place, as it has only one game to play, which it should win easily, as Boston is weak. Brockton has to meet the powerful Mohairs and also the Merrimacks.

The Chelsea boys still continue on their victorious career, the Bunting reserves being their latest victims. For Chelsea, Richards played a nice game for 10 before he was run out, the team being all out for 47, which proved a baker's dozen too many for the Bunting, for whom Marshall was top scorer, with 16, the rest of the team scoring less than 10. The bowling of Richards was deadly. Dalby clean bowled four players. Following is the standing of league teams with batting and bowling averages:

The Play School.

The story of the Play School as told in another column should be good reading for everybody, but particularly so for those who by gift of money or labor made the story possible. It is a story of accomplishment in many branches of youthful activity. From jack straw to millinery, and around through the devious ways of sloyd and bugs; and games and drills, things have been done that have broadened and deepened the lives of the Andover Play School attendants.

The largest accomplishments haven't been written in the story so modestly told. The "beats" that have been developed wherein the coming printers and carpenters, house-keepers and milliners, have been given great pushes toward useful labors; the habits of industry that have been formed through the best of all mixtures, that of work and play; the better appreciation of what the hands and eyes can discover to entertain and instruct; these and many other unseen and even unfelt influences have been developed in such a way by this summer institution that it will never be known just how large the achievement has been.

It is most interesting to know how widespread the reputation of the Andover Play School has been. One of the first to be established, it has steadily increased in usefulness to the community. It isn't a public school either through the method of its maintenance or the system under which it is carried on, and we hope it will never become a public school in either particular. Neither is it a private school in the generally accepted notion of that title. Everybody has been welcome, and everybody has been cared for just as far as accommodations would allow. Nobody has been compelled to go, yet each year more have gone voluntarily because they have seen the rare opportunities afforded. And this increased interest and growing usefulness have appealed to other communities and even to other lands, until the Andover Play School is a force and influence in a very large way.

In these days of constantly increasing rush and bustle in both work and play, every influence that rationalizes either work or play is to be heartily welcomed. The Play School can do this for the small boy's summer play, and that it can do it successfully is more and more clearly shown each year by the work of the Andover school.

Editorial Cinders.

The editor knows of no other way in which his gratitude can be sure to reach the right parties—than by expressing it here. To be sure it is gratitude for only seven more or less bruised and battered pears, but it is none the less deep and heartfelt. They were laid carefully across his doorstep, and bore unmistakable evidence of having been plucked from his own tree, but of course this is a trivial incident. The tree bore about a bushel and they were just in their prime when the thoughtfulness of someone saved the labor of picking. Seven ripe, sweet, pears! How touching the little act of seeing that the owner was not entirely forgotten! And note the scriptural number donated, one for each day in the week. We hope the thieves enjoyed the balance; we know they will enjoy the aftermath one of these days if the sum of all their depredations is successfully brought up against them as it ought to be. We can see the wisdom of Judge Stone naming a day for each pear if he gets the opportunity he ought to get in dealing with several little gangs of youthful after-dark toughs.

Andover has more than a passing pride in the announcements of a new mill at Lawrence. Her leading man of affairs, Mr. Wm. M. Wood, is the central figure in its conception and carrying out to completion; one of her rising business men, Mr. B. F. Smith, Jr., holds the prominent position of treasurer of the new company which is to carry on the business, and Messrs. W. N. Pike and E. W. Pitman are the contractors for the construction of what will be when completed one of the largest mill buildings in the country. May the "Wood Worsted Mills" ever stand as a monument to the splendid achievements of the man for whom they are named, who is today unquestionably the leading manufacturer of this great manufacturing country.

About two weeks ago some good-sized dirt piles were built around the several culverts in the centre of the town. They were made of the contents of the culverts and were supposed to be carted away. They have now laid so long that all of the light stuff has washed away again, and most of the heavy stuff is spread out over the surrounding streets. We do wish our efficient road builder had more love for road repairing and road caring.

John H. Flint entertained at his summer home in New Castle last Wednesday a party of men who are well known in the rubber trade, which included Chas. H. Arnold of Peol & Arnold, New York, Henry C. Pearson, editor of the India Rubber World, Arthur W. Steadman of George A. Alden Co., Boston, and Frederick H. Jones of the Tyler Rubber Co.

BOBBIN SHOP GUTTED

A Spectacular Fire at Midnight Caused
Heavy Damage on Park Street

Fire broke out in the bobbin shop owned by J. Atherton Ramsdell on Park street shortly before one o'clock on Saturday morning and considerable damage was done before the flames were subdued. The plant was insured in five companies the total insurance amounting to about $2800.

The fire was well under way when discovered by neighbors and the flames were ascending high into the air before the firemen arrived. They soon had a stream on the burning building and after a short fight the fire was under control. There was so much inflammable material in the building that flames burst out in all parts of the structure at the same time. The firemen bent every effort to subdue the flames, knowing that there was much property adjoining which was in danger.

The building is owned by J. E. Pitman and is occupied by J. Atherton Ramsdell as a bobbin shop. A large quantity of bobbins were destroyed besides almost all the machinery.

The proprietors of the bobbin shop estimate their loss at $3000, an examination revealing that much of the valuable machinery and stock was ruined by fire and water. The cause of the fire remains a mystery. It was promptly investigated but little information could be obtained. The most plausible explanation is that a spark from the boiler fell among the shavings and smoldered until flames burst out. There was so much inflammable material in the shop that fire once started spread with great rapidity.

Out On Strike.

Five employees of the street department went out on strike Tuesday morning and have not gone back to work since. The men struck for more pay which Supt. of Streets Lovejoy refused to grant as he has no authority to do otherwise. The men have received $1.75 a day and they want $2.00. They claim that the work they do is worth the extra quarter, and besides contend that employees in other departments of town work receive $2.00 per day.

They appeared before officials of the town in a very indignant mood on Tuesday afternoon and demanded the increase at once, and said that the town would have to pay them $2.00 a day for every day that they were on strike. They were informed that not only could they be refused the increase, but that they would be unable to collect for the days that they were on strike.

Superintendent Lovejoy says that he has no authority to increase the wages of the men and that the matter would have to come before a town meeting. He has had no difficulty in filling the places of the strikers and says that many men can be found to do the work.

The local strikers were successful in winning the employees at Ballardvale over and the forces are now joined.

Although the day was stormy it did not mar the pleasantness of the affair, the party being housed in the large and spacious barn owned by the host.

A caterer served baked clams with all the fixings, after which speeches, songs, sports and other amusements brought a very pleasant day to a close.

The party left on the early evening trains, after giving three cheers and a tiger for "Little Rich."

The funeral was held at her late home on Elm street at twelve o'clock, the service being conducted by Rev. Ernest M. Paddock, rector of Christ church, and many neighbors and friends were present to gaze for the last time into the face of a loved one. Beautiful floral tributes gave token of the esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew her.

Honored While Abroad

David F. Bruce, the well known cricketer and resident, arrived in Boston on Saturday after spending a vacation in his native country, Scotland.

While in Scotland Mr. Bruce played several matches with his old team, the Arbroath United, and in every game he showed his old-time form. On August 21 Mr. Bruce played with his team against the Glamis Castle eleven, which is composed of the nobility. Of this game the Arbroath Guide says:—

"The feature of the innings was the wicket-keeping of D. Bruce, who gave a fine exhibition with the fast bowling of the United, taking the ball with unflinching certainty on both sides of the wicket. His display was all the more remarkable, seeing that the last occasion on which he had kept wickets was ten years ago, when he played at Boston for the United States against the Australians, stamping out Blackham, the king of wicket keepers."

The same paper also says of his departure from Arbroath:—

"The Arbroath railway station presented a lively and animated appearance on Thursday night, when a large crowd of friends assembled to give our respected townsman, Mr. David Bruce, who has been here on a holiday from America, a happy send-off. No one present could fail to admire the canny, unassuming manner in which the esteemed Deacon withstood the ordeal while Dr. Duncan pinned a nice button-hole flower in his coat, at the same time wishing him every success and happiness in the future. The Deacon, as he is best known to his friends, though now resident in Andover for seventeen years, seems to stand out well, being as fresh looking as ever. By his genial and kindly disposition, on his present visit he has won a large number of new friends and admirers. He has evidently not lost any of his prowess on the cricket field. Playing at Glamis Castle on Monday, he was complimented by the Earl of Strathmore for his splendid wicket-keeping, there being only one extra against him."

REPORT OF PLAY SCHOOL

A Short Story of the Work Accomplished During the Summer

The Andover Play School of 1905 closed its six weeks on August 18, and the following may interest some of its friends.

This most excellent idea was conceived, and the school made possible through the Andover Guild.

The School Committee very generously donated the use of the commodious Stowe building for the purpose, thus affording very happy surroundings for the company of pupils who were fortunate enough to be admitted.

The original membership limit was sixty, but because of the many applications this was finally increased to seventy, the age limits being restricted to 9 to 14 years. This was found to be a wise decision on account of unavoidable limitations.

The following is a complete list of teachers, together with those who gratuitously rendered valuable aid during the term:—

Miss Clara A. Putnam, principal.
Miss Annie M. Downes, principal.
Miss Mary Helen Foster, millinery.
Warren F. Draper, sloyd, baseball, swimming.

David Coutts, printing.
Miss Amy Stork kindly assisted at plays and games, also taught dancing during a part of the time, each girl being given two lessons per week during the first four weeks.

Miss Constance Somers generously assisted during the occupation period three days each week, also taught vocal music, providing some most excellent material for the purpose, to the great pleasure and profit of a generous group of children. She also continued the dancing after Miss Stork left town.

Sloyd.

A definite plan of work here was adopted from the start. Each boy was permitted to progress as rapidly as he could do good work. Many boys made a goodly number of useful articles—coat-hangers, pencil-trays, tool-holders, key-boards, bread and cake boards, towel-rollers, boats, etc. A few boys were clever enough to make very handsome checker-boards, requiring much skill in the workmanship. Mr. Draper proved to be the right man in the right place, and the thing to be regretted was that there were but ten benches available, hence the forty boys taught could have only two lessons weekly.

Printing.

Many of the townspeople have seen the product of this department—two issues of the Play School Chronicle. A definite and ahead proved an incentive in this work, and Mr. Coutts' untiring energy together with a generous support from our business people in contributing "ads" were beyond a doubt the causes of the success attained.

Card-board Sloyd.

This was adopted very early in the term because of the absolute necessity to provide for those who desired bench-work and could not be accommodated. The training of eye, mind, and hand was therefore provided for, and this proved an enjoyable substitute for the sloyd so much desired. Waste baskets, trays of various sorts, whisk-broom holders, photograph frames, hat-pin holders, etc., all helped to increase the array of products which were the outcome of the several departments. Miss Putnam and Miss Downes assumed charge of this work, which was continued daily during the regular work period.

Millinery.

This proved very popular with the girls, who almost without exception worked untiringly two or three periods each week until very creditable products crowned their labors, and each girl had a real hat, trimmed, and ready to wear, the result of her own handiwork. Miss Foster proved her ability here, and when millinery was not the occupation took charge of the embroidery class, the making of paper flowers, fancy work-bags, etc.

It should not be forgotten that several boys took pleasure in the manufacture of a hat for their sister's doll.

Plays and Games.

This was Miss Downes' special department and was made an important feature of the school, a portion of each morning being devoted to playing old games or in the teaching of new ones. The several teachers lent their assistance, and then as perhaps at no other time were the children taught consideration for the rights of others, fair-dealing, and the application of the spirit of co-operation with each other.

The principle applied at all times was freedom, but not license. That all laws, arise of necessity, and the abuse of our privileges must necessitate the loss of them.

Two baseball teams were organized early, and constant practice resulted in efficient work by each of these.

Swimming.

Each day when the weather permitted squads of boys were taken to Ponds for lessons in swimming. Some could swim before, but not a few learned the art during these six weeks. Here, too, Mr. Draper exercised his good judgment.

Nature Study.

Miss Putnam had charge of this work, and efforts were made to make the teaching general enough to interest all in some degree. Some herbariums were made, some window-gardening was done, the children carrying home well-rooted plants for cultivation there. Aquaria were kept, and thus lessons from life were had on the cat-fish, snail, clam, turtle, and various forms of animal and plant life. Out-of-door lessons were given as often as possible, that the children might be taught humane methods in their eagerness to possess butterflies, dragon-flies, bugs, beetles, etc. "Rabbit's" pond furnished excellent opportunity for the study of dragon-flies. Some very excellent collections of insects were the result of this work, and many used butterfly stretchers which they had made in the sloyd-room. Trees and wood furnished the basis of other work.

It is to be hoped that the study of the birds and flowers, animals and trees, will inspire the children with the desire to show a proper regard for their right to live.

Entertainments.

Mrs. Wm. G. Goldsmith didn't imagine what a good time she was providing one morning when she donated a goodly supply of sweet apples, and Miss Blake when she sent a quantity of books and games.

A series of entertainments, however, were planned, and Punchard hall proved an excellent place for holding such.

The first was given by Miss Mary Alice Abbott and Miss Sarah Pratt. This was of readings and music.

The second was planned by Miss Mabel Carter, who was ably assisted by Miss Belle Butterfield and some others. These were highly appreciated by the young audience.

Mr. Palmer entertained also with an exhibition of lantern-pictures, and none could doubt the genuine pleasure when the short arose "Carmel Woods", and other familiar scenes received in a similar manner.

The last proved a fitting finale of the series—a trolley ride to the Pines, which was planned and carried out successively by Miss Anna B. Abbott and a few friends who generously contributed to the necessary funds. A glorious good time, and even the return in the midst of a severe thunderstorm did not prevent a rousing cheer for Andover and Play School.

Parents' Day.

As a closing event an exhibition of the children's work was arranged, and an invitation was generally extended to those interested to come and see the products of our skill and labor. A very good number accepted, and it is to be hoped that they were convinced that at least some good seed had been sown which may grow and ripen in the years to come.

Through to Boston.

On Monday morning the through cars on the Boston & Northern railroad made the first trip from Lawrence to Boston and all the week the travel has been heavy. On every trip through Andover the cars have been crowded showing that many were taking advantage of the through line.

The closed cars which were used the first few days were not large enough to accommodate all the passengers but large open cars were fitted up for fast speed and now no difficulty is experienced in accommodating the public.

The through cars run every half hour from Andover, leaving the square at twenty minutes to the hour and ten minutes past the hour.

The cars run to Sullivan square, Charlestown, and the trip is made in one hour and twenty minutes. The fare is twenty cents.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting

Last evening the monthly business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held. Albert E. Roberts, State secretary of Y. M. C. A. work, was present and discussed the matter of athletics for the Andover association. A committee of four was appointed to look up a room and report at a special business meeting to be held on Thursday evening, the 21st inst. A large attendance is desired at this meeting.

On Sunday afternoon, the 24th of Sept. at 3.30 o'clock, a public meeting under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in Pilgrim hall. This is the opening meeting for the fall and winter, and all the townspeople are invited to be present. A good program will be prepared for the occasion.

Obituary

LOUIS P. MERRILL.

Louis P. Merrill passed away suddenly at the home of his sister, Mrs. John E. Smith, on Wednesday morning at a quarter to one.

Mr. Merrill has been sick for about a year with a trouble which has baffled the several doctors who have attended him, but the end was caused by a hemorrhage with which he was taken during the night. He had been about for the last few days feeling much better than he had for some time. He had been up town all the morning, and was feeling in the best of spirits.

In the afternoon Mr. Merrill stayed around the house, and in the evening retired a little later than usual. Shortly before midnight he was taken with the hemorrhage. It was not thought to be serious by those attending him, as he had had them before. A physician was summoned, however, but nothing could be done.

Mr. Merrill was born in this town in 1844 and most of his 61 years have been spent here. He was educated in the local public schools and graduated from Pynchard school and Phillips Academy. He was the son of the late Jonathan Merrill.

For several years up to the time of his illness he was employed at Tyer Rubber company's plant and was highly respected by all who knew him.

Mr. Merrill is survived by two sisters, with whom he resided, Mrs. John L. Smith and Miss Mary S. Merrill.

The funeral was held this afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Mr. Wilson of the Free church officiating. Interment was in Spring Grove cemetery.

Severe Storm in West Andover

The thunder storm of Wednesday afternoon was severely felt in the western portion of the town, especially that part bordering on the Merrimack river. At the farm of C. I. Hood the worst damage was done.

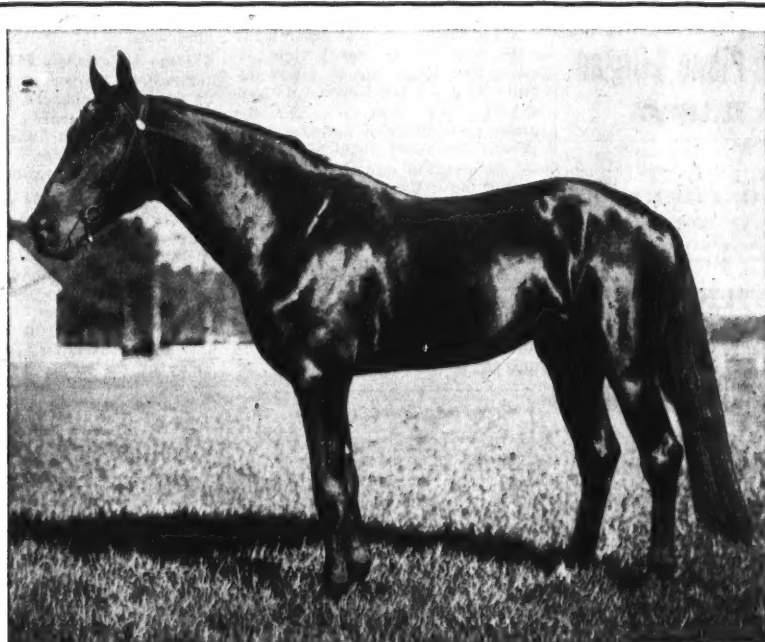

Seven farm hands and a prize cow had taken refuge beneath an apple tree, where they had been but a few minutes when a bolt struck the branches at the top and with a crash passed downward into the earth, stunning the men and killing the cow. Some of the men were badly affected by the bolt and it was some time before they came to. When they recovered they complained of feeling ill and of having peculiar pains in the stomach and back.

The cow which was killed was an exceedingly valuable animal. She had recently taken several prizes at cattle shows and was considered one of the best animals on the farm.

A bolt struck a wire of the local fire alarm system and a fuse was burned out in the engine house.

SINBAD'S ALLEGED PROTOTYPE.

From the London Chronicle.
The story of Sinbad the Sailor is believed to owe a good deal to the legend of St. Brendan, the Kerry saint. According to the legend, St. Brendan sailed the ocean for 7 years in search of the island that had once been Adam's Eden. During that time he regularly revisited the Island of Sheep, where the sheep are as large as oxen, the island of Birds, that are really fallen angels, and another island, which is really a big fish named Jason trying to get his tail into his mouth.

St. Brendan used to encamp on the fish on Easter Sunday. He found the Eden island at last, but no one has seen it since, though it appeared on seventeenth century maps and in an eighteenth century treaty between Spain and Portugal. Probably Irish monks took this legend with them to the East in the ninth century.

A COW'S ANNOYING IGNORANCE.

From the London Chronicle.
When Mr. Popper of Ellistown, Leicestershire, saw a wild cow galloping toward him, he remembered the old saying that to open an umbrella in the animal's face would frighten the cow off. He opened his umbrella calmly and with confidence. The cow had evidently never heard of the procedure in such circumstances, for Mr. Popper found himself in a hedge. Luckily he suffered nothing worse than a shock.

ACCEPTED LUCRATIVE POSITION.

The following is taken from the Enterprise of Friday, Sept. 1st and will prove of particular interest to the many friends of Mr. Cook in town, who regretted very much that he found it necessary to resign the principalship of the Bradstreet grammar school, but feel pleased that he has located so well:

"Louis D. Cook, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Cook, is at home for a few days. Mr. Cook has recently accepted a lucrative position as field manager of the Boston office of Horst, Jenkins & Co., publishers, of Chicago. Because this was such an exceptional business opening, he resigned his position as principal of the Bradstreet grammar school of North Andover."

HON. JOHN A. WILEY OF NORTH ANDOVER DEAD.

The death of Hon. John A. Wiley of North Andover occurred at his residence, corner of Elm and Water streets at six o'clock Friday evening. Death came after a long period of illness from the failure of a general breaking up of the system. Death came peacefully and the aged man passed away surrounded by members of his family. Funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The deceased was born in South Reading, now Wakefield, Feb. 1, 1825, the son of Nathaniel and Lydia (Trull) Wiley.

At the age of 14 years he was apprenticed to Oliver Parker, a carriage builder, in Woburn, becoming a skillful workman after five years' service. From the spring of 1845 until the fall of the same year he was employed by W. & J. Poor, a well-known carriage building firm at Frye Village.

Oct. 23, 1845, Mr. Wiley accepted a position with Gleason & Dow, now the Davis and Furber Machine company. His ability was recognized and he became a member of the firm Davis, Gleason & Furber. After nine years he became a member of the firm of Davis & Furber on Jan. 1, 1858.

While traveling extensively in the United States and Canada, setting up the productions of the firm and subsequently soliciting orders for machinery, the deceased, by his honorable dealings formed firm friendships among the mill owners, and few, if any, men of his time were better known by wooden manufacturers.

He was a prodigious worker, and his marked ability, tact and resourcefulness made him a prominent factor in the firm, to which he gave much devoted service.

When the Davis & Furber Machine company was incorporated in 1883, Mr. Wiley was chosen president of the company, and the late Hon. George L. Davis, treasurer. Mr. Wiley continued as president until the death of Mr. Davis, in 1891, and was then elected treasurer, which office he held for four years, and then resigned. After his resignation, Mr. Wiley was again elected president, and held this office at the time of his death. Mr. Wiley was a man of keen judgment and untiring energy. He was the best kind of a man who had built up his reputation and fortune by his own efforts.

In politics the deceased was an Independent Democrat.

He served as a member of the state senate in 1880-81 after one year's previous term in the house of representatives.

He was a director in the Pacific National bank, the New Cattle company and the Concord N. H. Cattle company.

He belonged to Greelan lodge, A. F. and A. M., Mt. Sinai Royal Arch chapter, Lawrence Council, R. and S. M. and Bethany commandery, 17, Knights Templar. He was also an honorary member of Cochinewick lodge, A. F. and A. M., North Andover, and was a 32nd degree Mason of the Scottish rite lodges of Lowell and Boston. The deceased was survived by a widow, nee Eliza R. Downing, daughter of Samuel and Ruby (Frye) Downing.

The deepest sorrow dwelt in the hearts of those who gathered about the body of the late John Adams Wiley Tuesday afternoon at the home, corner of Elm and Water streets, North Andover. Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock. In attendance were a large number of the older business men of this city who had known the deceased for a good many years and held him in the highest of respect. The memory of the venerable president of the Davis and Furber Machine company will be remembered.

In respect for the dead the Davis and Furber plant remained closed today to start up Wednesday morning.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Charles L. Hubbard, pastor of the West Roxford Congregational church, in which the deceased was a member, having spent his summers in the quiet town for several years. Rev. Mr. Hubbard was assisted by the Rev. Henry E. Barnes, D. D., of Brookline, formerly pastor of the North Andover Congregational church, and the present pastor, Rev. John L. Keedy.

There was no music at the funeral. The remains reposed in a rare black broadcloth covered casket, oxidized silver trimmed. The plate bore the simple inscription:

JOHN A. WILEY.

About the casket were arranged a large number of large and beautiful floral tributes.

Previous to the services many of the employees of the Davis and Furber Machine plant viewed the remains of their aged employer and a feeling of great sadness was manifest.

Present at the services were relatives and friends from this city, Andover, Methuen, West Roxford, Boston, Watertown, Woburn, Stoneham, Lowell, Haverhill, Merrimac, Brookline, New Britain, Conn., and North Andover. Among the mourners were representatives of the different organizations and business enterprises with which the deceased was connected.

Committal service was conducted at the graveside in Ridgewood cemetery, North Andover where interment took place, by the Rev. John L. Keedy.

The pall bearers were: George G. Davis and Joseph H. Stone, representing the Davis and Furber Machine company; Postmaster Byron Truell, president of the Pacific National bank and Director, M. Carney, representing the Institution; Eminent Commander Sir Newton P. Frye and Generalissimo Thomas Davidson of Bethany, Capt. and Adj. Knights Templar.

Rev. Mr. Hubbard said: "Whenever we hear of the death of a person of mature years, we pause for a moment, for involuntarily there comes the thought of a work done, a struggle ended and an opportunity closed.

"But what comes to us this afternoon makes these suggestions impressive.

"The shops are silent, and those who carry on their processes are here; neighbors are gathered with sad faces; the pastors of the churches are present; business associates and the representatives of great interests have assembled, and all have come to bear testimony by their presence to the worth of this man, who they have known so well.

"It is in their thought that there has been a man of high business aims, of strong will and masterful purpose. They recognize in him a type of the generation to which he belonged.

"But those who knew Mr. Wiley intimately, recall with pleasure another side of his character.

"There was a readiness to meet people. There was the welcoming face and the welcoming hand. His success made no difference between him and others. He was thoughtful of those in need. The unfortunate ever found in him a friend. Few knew the record of his gifts.

"Brought into close relationship with many people he was a judge of character. He weighed men's traits and estimated them.

"And, sharpest test of one's own self, he appreciated right things in others. He spoke in the highest terms of his partners, and especially of Hon. George L. Davis.

"He was reverent in the church where he worshipped and was an interested listener. We must have the church," he said, and when young men entered the shop, his advice to them was, 'Go to some church.'

"Readily he gave his testimony to the principles which he regarded as of value, and we realize that there has been a man among us who was upon the right side of moral issues and who was to be trusted.

"His home life was ideal, and he was a loving husband to a devoted wife."

BOSTON & NORTHERN AND OLD COLONY STREET RAILWAYS' PHOTOGRAPHIC CONTEST POSTPONED.

Owing to the absence of one of the judges, the closing of the Photographic Contest of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony street railways will be postponed from September first to October first. This will give an opportunity for many to enter who have not during the summer had the time to take any pictures. The month of September affords a great many opportunities for photographers. The leaves on the trees are beginning to fall, and the weather will be so delightful that it will be a pleasure to tramp about in search of nature's beauty spots. Contestants who have already sent in a dozen photographs are at liberty to send in as many more as desired, thus giving a chance for the best dozen to be selected out of the lot.

Due notice will be given of the successful competitors, as well as the prizes received by each.

Letter to Pearson Bros.

Andover, Mass.

Dear Sirs: Why, do you think, can Devoe sell pure paint as low as others sell adulterated paint?

There are 30 or 40 or 50 different makers of paint, that rank, in a way, as "first-class," they have their regions; one's region is large, another's is small; every one is "first-class" in its region.

Of these 30 or 40 or 50, one is best, another next, and so on down; but the prices are all the same or about the same — you can buy one for less than another though; a personal matter sometimes.

But how, do you think, can Devoe sell the best for no more than the rest? The answer is: it costs less to sell it; more to make, less to sell. Reputation helps sell it. Its 150 years help sell it.

Go by the name. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO.
